IN THIS SESSION:

The HR Excellence in Research Award as an instrument for continuous improvement in universities.

The HR Excellence in Research Award, promoted by the European Commission, involves a process of continuous commitment with and review of research policies and practices, with the aim of ensuring that the research recruitment processes of the institutions remain open, transparent and merit-based. This strategy also aims to ensure that institutions respect the fundamental rights and foundations of researchers and funding agencies which are recognised in the Charter for Researchers.

In 2021 UVic-UCC obtained the European HRS4R award, after developing an action plan through a participatory process. In this session, Eva Espasa and Lídia Munmany will present the process of obtaining the HRS4R award by UVic-UCC and explain the main learnings obtained.
